[Informative value of routine laboratory tests in patients with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease]. Sixty-four patients were investigated by using routine laboratory tests (serum electrolytes, carbon dioxide content, total bile acids, gamma-glutamyl transferase, alkaline phosphatase, alanine aminotransferase, lactate dehydrogenase, total protein and immunoglobulin concentrations) and pulmonary function tests (FEV1, FVC and FEV1/FVC ratio). The study included 30 patients with bronchial asthma and 34 patients with chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD). The results were compared with the clinical picture. In the COPD group serum potassium concentrations (5.1 +/- 0.3 versus 4.6 +/- 0.3 mmol/l, p less than 0.01), carbon dioxide (7.9 +/- 0.6 versus 8.5 +/- 0.5 mmol/l, p less than 0.01), total bile acids (10.0 +/- 1.2 versus 2.4 +/- 0.3 micromol/l, p less than 0.01), alkaline phosphatase (215 +/- 27 versus 160 +/- 13 U/l, p less than 0.05) and lactate dehydrogenase (704 +/- 106 versus 567 +/- 59 U/l, p less than 0.05) were increased. The increased levels of serum bile acids and alkaline phosphatase correlated with the severity of dyspnoea. The correlations between FEV1 and total protein (r = 0.50, p less than 0.01), hemoglobin (r = 0.46, p less than 0.01), alkaline phosphatase (r = 0.41, p less than 0.01), lactate dehydrogenase (r = 0.47, p less than 0.01) and total bile acids (r = 0.48, p less than 0.01) were positive. Our results suggest that the routine laboratory tests are useful in the diagnosis of the COPD. of the outcome. It was beyond the control of the experimental design and it influenced the results. Agreed with above comments. While the results cannot be directly generalized to a clinical setting, authors should raise such an important issue, and we think its publication is appropriate. Q: Why does the ~ (tilde) notation not allow to delete words? In various places I am asking for an "easy to use" way of removing words from a document. However, there appears to be a recurring problem: ~/tmp/xx ~/Desktop/yy ~/tmp/xx ~/Desktop/yy x= "oo"; y= "pp" in my terminal i do echo "$x ~ y" which returns: "oo pp", I do not understand why it does not return "o o". A: This behaviour is explained on UNIX.com: ~/tmp/ Expands to the value of the HOME environment variable. If the variable is not set or null, expands to the current user's home directory. ~/Desktop/ Expands to the current directory's parent directory, followed by /desktop, which then expands to the desktop directory of that parent. If the directory is not empty, expands to the empty string. Otherwise, expands to the current directory. ~/tmp/xx~/Desktop/yy Expands to the value of the HOME environment variable, followed by /tmp, followed by /desktop, followed by /yy. If the variables are not set or null, the expansion is to the root directory, followed by the current directory, followed by the shell's current directory. If you want to remove the last part of a pathname, you have to use the last option in the above quote. A: ~/Desktop/yy is the expanded path to the value of the variable $HOME, which expands to "~/Desktop". ~/tmp/xx~/Desktop/yy expands to "~/tmp/xx~/Desktop/yy". You can make either of the two lines expand to "/tmp/xx" (by using $HOME again) or "/tmp/xx~/Desktop/yy" (by using., which turns the current directory into the value of the variable $PWD). ~/tmp/xx ~/Desktop/yy is the expanded path to the value of the variable $HOME, which expands to "~/Desktop". ~/tmp/xx ~/Desktop/yy expands to "~/tmp/xx~/Desktop/yy". You can make either of the two lines expand to "/"
